

WHA Technical Briefing From commitment to action: Parliaments moving the UHC agenda forward

23 May 2018 12.30-14.00, Room XVI, Palais des Nations

Every human being, without distinction of any kind, has the right to the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of physical and mental health and to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of oneself and one's family. Health is a precondition for, and an outcome and indicator of, sustainable development. Yet despite the progress made, challenges in global health, including major inequities and vulnerabilities within and among countries, regions and populations, remain and demand reinforced attention.

At least half of the world's population still do not have full coverage of essential health services. About 100 million people are still being pushed into "extreme poverty" (living on 1.90 USD or less a day) because they have to pay for health care. Over 800 million people (almost 12% of the world's population) spent at least 10% of their household budgets to pay for health care.

The solution is Universal Health Coverage (UHC).

UHC means that all people and communities can use the promotive, preventive, curative, rehabilitative and palliative health services they need, of sufficient quality to be effective, while also ensuring that the use of these services does not expose the user to financial hardship. UHC enables everyone to access the services that address the most important causes of disease and death and ensures that the quality of those services is good enough to improve the health of the people who receive them.

The international community has committed to achieving UHC by 2030 as part of the Sustainable Development Goals. A global resolution on UHC will be adopted by the United Nations at a High-Level Meeting in September 2019.

Parliaments have a critical role to play in accelerating progress towards UHC and in ensuring that all individuals and communities receive the health services they need without suffering financial hardship. Key parliamentary actions are required in terms of legislation, accountability, advocacy and budget allocation.

To underline the parliamentary commitment to UHC, the Inter-Parliamentary Union (IPU) is preparing a resolution on Achieving Universal Health Coverage by 2030: the role of Parliaments in ensuring the right to health, which is planned to be adopted in October 2019 at the 141st IPU Assembly. As part of this process, a global consultation with parliamentarians took place in April 2019.

The purpose of the WHA Technical Briefing is to highlight the significance of parliamentary action on UHC, to discuss how parliaments can address key UHC challenges, and to provide inputs to the development of the IPU resolution on UHC. It also aims at discussing how this commitment can be translated into concrete actions at national and regional level.

Participants in the Technical Briefing are expected to include governmental officials, civil society organizations, scientists and parliamentarians, as well as other interested parties attending the WHA.
